

THE SOCIOLOGY DEPARTMENT COLLOQUIUM PRESENTS:

Professional Work in a "Post-Racial" Era: Black Health Care Workers in the New Economy

Adia Wingfield

Mary Tileston Hemenway Professor of Arts & Sciences
Washington University in St. Louis

Wednesday, March 30th from 12:30-1:50pm CT
SSRB Tea Room/SSRB 201*
and via Zoom: <https://bit.ly/3BSaKYP>

This talk focuses on black professionals in the health care industry to explore how they manage the tensions of adapting to neoliberal ideals of work in a more multiracial society. It shows how the tensions change the labor that black professionals do within and outside of organizations. The talk identifies new challenges for organizations and reveals an additional way that racial inequality gets perpetuated in the new economy.

This event is co-sponsored by the Center for the Study of Gender and Sexuality and the Center for the Study of Race, Politics, and Culture. In-person attendance is available on a first-come, first-served basis. Please email Meredith Clason at mclason@uchicago.edu if you would like to attend the talk in the Tea Room.
